Archibald Bed

The Archibald Bed is built around a headboard that refuses to sit flat. Its panel rises tall behind the pillows, then turns forward at both ends into flared wings that enclose the head of the bed on three sides. Across the inner face, sage-teal leather is gathered rather than stretched — soft vertical folds falling from a single centre seam, loose enough to shift with the light. The reverse is the opposite: smooth, tailored, closed with four clean vertical seams, so the bed holds its line even when it stands away from a wall. Below, a low plinth wraps the frame in the same leather, rounded at the front rail and at every corner, with a continuous cord of piping tracing the curve where headboard meets base. Short dark feet lift the whole volume just clear of the floor.

MATERIALS:

Internal Frame:	Kiln-dried timber with steel reinforcement, fully concealed within the upholstery
Headboard:	Tall wraparound panel with flared side wings, upholstered front and back
Padding:	High-resilience polyurethane foam with a polyester fibre wrap
Base:	Timber box frame, fully upholstered on all four sides
Platform:	Slatted timber support beneath the mattress
Cover:	Sage-teal leather, single-needle stitched with piped seams
Feet:	Dark cylindrical feet with protective floor glides

FEATURES:

Wraparound Headboard:	The panel curves forward at both ends into angled wings that enclose the head of the bed, so the headboard reads as a room within the room rather than a flat board against the wall
Gathered Leather Front:	Soft vertical ruching runs across the inner face of the headboard, split by a single centre seam — the leather falls in loose folds instead of being pulled flat
Tailored Reverse:	The back of the headboard is upholstered smooth with four clean vertical seams, so the bed holds its line when placed away from a wall
Piped Plinth:	A continuous piped edge traces the curve where the headboard meets the base and runs along the rounded lower rail, drawing one unbroken outline around the whole frame
Bullnose Base:	The plinth is rounded at the front rail and corners rather than squared, keeping a low, heavy volume from reading as a box
Raised Feet:	Short dark cylindrical feet lift the base clear of the floor and cast a shadow line beneath the plinth
Maintenance:	Wipe leather with a soft dry cloth and condition periodically; keep out of prolonged direct sunlight
Assembly:	Assembly required — headboard mounts to the base frame, side rails bolt to the plinth
