Volare Due Bed

The Volare Due hangs its headboard rather than building it. A single closed rectangle of solid walnut, curved at every corner so the grain runs unbroken through the bend, frames a tan leather panel suspended inside it with open gaps above and below — light passes straight through where most beds put a solid mass against the wall. Two taupe cushions hang from the panel on buckled leather straps, saddlery detailing left fully visible. Below, the leather-wrapped platform tapers toward a walnut rail and rests on four sculpted legs that splay outward as they reach the floor.

MATERIALS:

Headboard Frame:	Solid walnut, shaped as a continuous rectangle with rounded corners
Headboard Panel:	Tan leather over a shaped core, suspended inside the frame
Back Cushions:	Taupe leather over high-resilience foam, hung on buckled leather straps
Platform:	Timber frame wrapped in tan leather with a tapered lower edge
Base Rail:	Solid walnut, running the length of the platform
Legs:	Solid walnut, sculpted and splayed, with protective floor glides
Slatted Base:	Sprung timber slats on a central steel support

FEATURES:

Strap-Hung Cushions:	The two back cushions hang from buckled leather straps looped over the panel rather than fixed in place — saddlery detailing that leaves the headboard reading as assembled, not upholstered
Continuous Walnut Frame:	A single closed rectangle of solid walnut surrounds the headboard, its corners curved so the grain runs uninterrupted through the bend with no visible joints or hardware
Suspended Leather Panel:	The tan panel hangs inside the frame with open gaps above and below, so light passes through and the headboard reads as a drawn outline rather than a solid block
Tapered Platform Edge:	The leather-wrapped platform thins toward its lower edge above a walnut rail, keeping a large frame visually light
Splayed Walnut Legs:	Four sculpted legs angle outward and taper toward the floor, lifting the frame 9.1 inches clear of the ground
Sprung Slat Base:	Timber slats on a central steel support flex under weight and let the mattress breathe from below
Maintenance:	Wipe leather with a soft dry cloth and condition periodically; dust the walnut with a dry microfibre cloth and keep out of prolonged direct sunlight
Assembly:	Assembly required — headboard frame and side rails join to the platform, legs attach beneath
